

BIG PAKES ARE BAD

Laborers Make Trouble on Maui.

Thirty-Eight Are in Jail—Resisted the Police—Used Clubs and Stones—Now Cooling.

Thirty-eight of the new big Chinese case field laborers are in jail at Wailuku and Kahului, Maui. They are from the Wailuku plantation and have been refusing labor and rioting and resisting the police authorities. The trouble occurred last week.

Manager Wells of Wailuku plantation and police representatives on Maui have reported on the affair to the Government here. These coolies are Manchurians and for the most of the time of their comparatively short service have been tractable and industrious enough. Lately an agitator has been at work amongst them and finally one morning on a variety of petty pretexts they refused to leave for the fields. The manager attempted to divide the unruly men. It was the intention to place part of them on Wailuku and part on Wailue plantation, with the hope that harmony and satisfaction would be inspired into the two squads.

The whole company of thirty-eight refused to listen to anything. All of the men were arrested and taken to Wailuku jail. Speedy trial was given them, though they insisted on a change of venue from one District Magistrate to another. The result of the hearing was conviction. There was not enough room in the Wailuku jail for all the men and it was decided to take part of the prisoners to Kahului jail. Again there was serious trouble, this time just outside the court room. The Manchurians, who are tall, strong fellows, made a marked resistance. They grabbed stones and clubs and quite a battle ensued, with the police on the opposing side. No shots were fired, though several of the officers were hurt. The Chinese were subdued and the orders of the Judge carried into effect.

It is believed that so soon as the men cool down a bit they will be willing to return to work.

Kahului Railway Asks Damages From Hawaiian Commercial.

The Kahului Railway and the Hawaiian Commercial companies are once more in court. This time the Kahului Company appears as the aggressor.

In March last the Hawaiian Commercial created a sensation for Hawaii and by presenting what was afterwards called in court here the United States or California method of acquiring a railroad right of way. The Hawaiian Commercial went over the tracks of the Kahului Company at night and had on hand a force to meet any resistance to the operations in hand.

Next the Hawaiian Commercial came into court in Honolulu and asked for an injunction forbidding the Kahului Railway Company touching the work that had been done at night. This was one of the most interesting and earnestly contested issues ever made at the Hawaiian bar. The Hawaiian Commercial was defeated.

Now the Kahului Railway Company sues for $50,000 damages from the Hawaiian Commercial. The plaintiff alleges that injury to this amount has been sustained by the forcible manner of the defendant and by the right of way trespassed upon.

Happily Mated.

There were about thirty of the relatives and close friends of the bride and groom present for the marriage of Judge C. Fred Peterson and Miss Carrie E. Wright last evening. This took place at the home of Senator John N. Wright, Little Britain, Honolulu, Oahu. The ceremony was performed by Rev. D. P. Birnie. After this there were light refreshments. Mr. and Mrs. Peterson will spend the honeymoon at Pearl City, leaving this morning for Miss Johnson's place on the Pelehu. The young people so happily mated are well known and highly esteemed.

CAPT. HUBBARD WILL FIGHT.

Claims Commissioner North Does Not Attend to Business.

Captain Hubbard of the barkentine S. N. Castle, says the Chronicle, is preparing to resist in court the demand of Commissioner North for $5,000 penalty because passengers were landed without permission of the immigration office.

Captain Hubbard states that he arrived from Honolulu at 10 o'clock Sunday night, May 29th, and was boarded without delay by the quarantine and customs officers. At 9 o'clock the next morning he sent his first mate on shore to hunt up the Immigration Commissioner. Finding the office closed the mate went to the Custom-house, where Deputy Surveyor Chauncey St. John attempted to telephone to Commissioner North's office and to his law office, but was unable to get any response. As the Commissioner lives in Oakland and could not be reached, Captain Hubbard allowed the passengers, who were by this time very impatient, to land at noon. The names of the passengers are as follows: A. H. McQuinnery, Charles Rhodes, S. M. Corke, Maria Rhodes, Mrs. M. B. Rhodes and Dr. C. M. Pense, all citizens of the United States.

Captain Hubbard says he will not only contest the case but will bring charges against Commissioner North for neglect of duty.

NO BUILDING BIG ENOUGH.

Probably the two women whose names we are about to mention (by their good will and consent) never saw or even heard of each other. A broad bit of sea-water rolls between the places where they severally live. Still, the world is getting smaller every day, and it is quite possible they may meet; if they do, they will have a common subject for a talk. Without waiting for that, however, we will let the reader into the secret (so far as it is a secret) right on the spot.

The first lady to be named resides at Bishop's Norton, near Kirtland, Lindsey, Lincolnshire, and in a letter dated the 16th of the blustering month of March, 1888, she says, "I troubled from head to foot."

This would scarcely be worth mentioning if it had been simply the result of a fright and therefore bound to pass off in a few minutes. But it lasted for a long time and did not arise from a fright or from any other form of excitement. It meant sheer weakness and a wholesome upsetting of the nerves. "I was constantly sick and dizzy," she says, "and had a dull pain between the shoulders. I had no appetite, and the effect of what little I did eat was so bad and gave me so much distress that after a time I hardly dared touch any food or drink. During this period I may just mention that I was terribly constipated, intervals of ten days sometimes elapsing between the actions of the bowels. No laxatives or enemata availed to relieve this condition, and I became more feeble and prostrated day by day. My illness began in August, 1887, and after four months' suffering I was completely cured in December by your remedy. Indeed it was not necessary for me to take quite one bottle. If any one who reads this little statement of mine wishes to know more about my case, I will gladly answer inquiries. (Signed) Mrs. M. G. Washburn."

The second lady writes from her home No. 12, Horgan's Buildings, College Road, Cork, dating her letter the 27th of the sunny month of June, 1893. She says, "Everything was a trouble and a burden. For nights together I got no sleep. I couldn't bear the noise of the children. I had no desire for company; I wanted to be alone in my misery. I often thought I was going to die. I was in this way for nearly twelve months."

Now this was bad; very, very bad. When a woman cannot bear the noise of her own children—which of all noises is least observed by a mother's ear—why, her nerves are, as we might say, all gone to pieces. And inasmuch as the nerves are only a part of the body, it follows that the whole system is badly out of order. And so it was. "The complaint," she says, "came on in October, 1890." It was marked by failure of the appetite, pain and weight in the chest after eating, a sinking feeling at the pit of the stomach, biliousness, flatulency, and other signs with which the readers of these articles are so sadly familiar.

Of the progress of the malady and how low it reduced her she has already spoken. The end of it all—a happy end, thank mercy—was like this: "In September, 1891," she adds, "my husband persuaded me to try a medicine he had read and heard so much about. I did so, and soon found relief—a relief that none of the other medicines I had used were able to give me. My lost appetite came back, and my food digested easily and strengthened me. You hardly need be told that I continued taking the medicine, and soon I was well as ever I was in my life and have aided nothing since. Yours truly, (Signed) Mrs. Lucy Carroll."

Women, like men, never agree on all the topics which come up in conversation. It would be a dull world if they did. But these two will agree that they were afflicted with the same complaint—indigestion and dyspepsia; and that Mother Siegel's Curative Syrup, which restored them both to health, is one of the very best friends in time of trouble that their sex ever had.

And what is more, if all the women in this kingdom who think the same were collected in one meeting, no building could be found big enough to accommodate them.
